ONE HUNDRED AND SIXTY SECOND
COMMENCEMENT

MAY 15, 2023

BROOKINGS HALL stands as the symbolic heart of Washington University, its archway serving as a doorway between the university and the St. Louis community. Constructed of red Missouri granite in the Collegiate Gothic style, “University Hall,” as it was first called, was built between 1900 and 1902 and was the administrative center for the 1904 World’s Fair.

FRANCIS OLYMPIC FIELD is named for alumnus and statesman David R. Francis. It was constructed in 1902 and first used in 1904 for the third Olympic Games, held in St. Louis. The ornamental wrought-iron gate on the east end of the field was built after the World's Fair to commemorate the 1904 Olympics, and the field is a registered historic landmark. In 2018, the sculpture "Spectacular," featuring the five interlaced Olympic rings, was installed near Francis Olympic Field, celebrating St. Louis' Olympic legacy.

THE COMMENCEMENT CEREMONY

Washington University and other American universities, public and private, follow the pattern of degree granting developed at the University of Paris, which was founded about 1100. In the early days of the University of Paris, the discipline of the students—and indeed their education—fell under the jurisdiction of the Bishop of Paris who was responsible for local educational matters. While the bishop claimed supervision of curriculum and degree-granting, the university’s teaching masters disagreed, believing that they were the proper judges of the qualifications of their students. As such, they demanded the right to grant degrees.

The modern commencement ceremony represents a compromise between the bishop and the teaching masters. By 1200, the masters were judging the merits of students and then recommending them to the bishop, who conferred degrees. Today’s ceremony is the successor to this medieval compromise. The deans present the qualified candidates to the chancellor. Acting upon the recommendation of the faculty, the chancellor, as executive officer of the Board of Trustees, formally confers the appropriate degrees.

ACADEMIC DRESS

The academic dress worn by faculty and degree candidates originates in the clerical robes of students and teachers at the earliest medieval universities. In 1895, American colleges and universities adopted a code of academic dress that included regulating the cut and style of the gowns and prescribing colors to represent the different fields of learning. The code, which has since been updated and revised, is still in use at colleges and universities throughout the United States. The design of caps and gowns is determined by the following:

Level of degree earned: This is reflected in the design of the gown. The bachelor’s degree gown has pointed sleeves, the master’s degree gown has oblong sleeves, and doctoral degree gown has bell-shaped sleeves with three bars of velvet. All can be worn open or closed.

Institution granting the degree: The backs of the hoods for advanced degrees are lined with silk showing the colors of the institution granting the degree or the institution with which the wearer is connected. Washington University’s hood is lined with red and green, the school’s official colors. The color of the tassel on the cap and of the velvet edging of the hood, which is carried forward around the throat, indicates the division of the university:

Arts & Sciences (bachelor’s and master’s degrees) — white
Arts & Sciences (PhD) — dark-blue
Architecture — blue-violet
Art — brown
Business — silver-beige
Engineering — orange
Law — purple
Medicine — green
Public Health — salmon pink
Social Policy — peacock
Social Work — citron
University College — golden-yellow
Honorary degrees awarded by the Board of Trustees — gold

BANNERS

In addition to the coloring present in the academic dress, the division also is represented on the Commencement banners. These banners are carried by a student marshal at the head of the procession for their division. The side sections of the banners are red and green, the university’s colors, and the center section, which bears the seal of the university, is the color of the academic division.

THE UNIVERSITY SEAL

Holmes Smith, professor of drawing and history of art, developed the university seal (on the cover) in 1896. The original version, approved by the Board of Trustees in March 1897, incorporated elements of the coat of arms of George Washington, for whom the university is named, and fleur-de-lis, the symbol of King Louis IX, the patron and namesake of St. Louis. The current seal was created in 2000 and includes these same elements, as well as the university motto, “per veritatem vis” or strength through truth, which was adopted in 1915.

HONORARY GRAND MARSHAL

Cynthia Weese

When Cynthia Weese, FAIA, was named dean of Washington University's School of Architecture in 1993, she became the first woman dean of any school in the university's history. In a career spanning six decades, she has demonstrated excellence as an architect, educator and leader, inspiring new generations of women to join the field.

Born in Des Moines, Iowa, Ms. Weese first found inspiration as a child after touring the construction site of Eliel Saarinen's Des Moines Arts Center and by getting to know every inch of her grandmother's home, a Craftsman-style house built by her grandfather. By age 14, she knew she wanted to be an architect.

During a family vacation to St. Louis as a high schooler, she and her family visited Washington University after exploring Forest Park. When approaching Brookings Hall, Ms. Weese noticed the word "ARCHITECTURE" inscribed on nearby Givens Hall and went inside to have a look. There she met then Dean Joseph R. Passonneau, who encouraged her to apply for the architecture program.

She did and went on to earn a Bachelor of Science in Architectural Sciences in 1962 and a Bachelor of Architecture degree in 1965, both from Washington University. While a student, she met architect Ben Weese, who was a visiting professor. They married and she moved to Chicago where Ben had a practice, and she established her own.

After working independently, she joined Joe Karr & Associates, a landscape architecture firm, in 1971, and spent two years at her brother-in-law's firm, Harry Weese & Associates, before returning to private practice.

In 1977, she and Ben founded Chicago architecture firm Weese Seegers Hickey Weese, now Weese Langley Weese. The award-winning firm has been involved in both new construction and adaptive reuse projects throughout the country. The firm, which has done work for many colleges and universities, has also built hundreds of units of affordable housing and completed projects with the Art Institute of Chicago and the School of Art Institute.

In 1993, Weese returned to Washington University as professor and dean of the School of Architecture. During her tenure, she initiated international study programs, introduced computer technology initiatives and enhanced the technology and design curricula.

She also served on the University Council, Campus Planning Committee and Diversity Task Force.

She was active on the executive committee of what would become the Sam Fox School of Design & Visual Arts, which helped plan two new buildings, the Kemper Art Museum and Walker Hall. A founding member of the School of Architecture's National Council, she remains a member of the Sam Fox School National Council.

Among her work in the St. Louis community, she served as chair of the Planning and Urban Design Committee for St. Louis 2004, a member of the architect selection committee for the Museum of Contemporary Art, and an advisor to the selection committee for the addition to the Saint Louis Art Museum. She also served on the visiting committee for the MIT School of Architecture and Planning and on the editorial advisory board of Harvard Design Magazine.

A fellow of the American Institute of Architects (AIA), she served as president of AIA Chicago and vice president of the national AIA board. She is a founding member of Chicago Women in Architecture and the Chicago Architectural Club and served as president of the latter.

She was a board member of the Society of Architectural Historians and a member of the Chicago Design Initiative, an advisory group to the city's Department of Planning and Development. She is a board member of the Charnley-Persky House Museum Foundation, which is dedicated to the preservation of the historic house designed by Louis Sullivan and Frank Lloyd Wright.

Ms. Weese has been featured in Harvard Design Magazine, Progressive Architecture, Inland Architect, Chicago Architectural Journal and Architecture Contemporaine. She is the recipient of two Distinguished Service Awards from AIA Chicago, the Excellence in Education Award from AIA Illinois and the Tao Sigma Delta Gold Medal in Architecture. She received the inaugural Lifetime Achievement Award from the Chicago Women in Architecture Foundation and the Award for Design Leadership and Service from the Society of Architectural Historians.

She received Washington University's Distinguished Alumni Award at its 2008 Founders Day celebration and the Dean's Medal from the Sam Fox School in 2011.

She and Ben live in Chicago and have two children and five grandchildren.

HONORARY DEGREE

Anthony S. Fauci, MD

Doctor of Science

Anthony S. Fauci, MD, the recently retired director of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases (NIAID) of the National Institutes of Health (NIH), has made seminal contributions in infectious disease and immunology research and to public health, most recently through his work to inform the public about COVID-19.

Medical adviser to seven U.S. presidents, Dr. Fauci served as NIAID director from 1984 through this past December and oversaw an extensive research portfolio on domestic and global health issues. The COVID-19 pandemic, however, presented him with likely the most formidable challenge of his career. He became the widely recognized face of public health as he worked to stem the spread of the virus and accelerate development of lifesaving vaccines.

At NIAID, Dr. Fauci oversaw the institute's basic and applied research to prevent, diagnose and treat diseases such as HIV/AIDS, respiratory infections, diarrheal disease, tuberculosis and malaria, as well as emerging diseases such as Ebola, Zika and COVID-19. He also led the NIAID research effort on transplantation and immune-related illnesses, including autoimmune disorders, asthma and allergies.

Dr. Fauci was a leading adviser on global HIV/AIDS issues, working as a key member of the scientific effort after AIDS first was recognized in 1981 and then conducting pivotal work that underpins the understanding of the disease. His laboratory made seminal contributions to research into how HIV destroys the body's defenses and leads to susceptibility to deadly infections. Further, he was instrumental in developing treatments that enable people with HIV to live long and active lives.

While advising President George W. Bush, Dr. Fauci was a principal architect of the President's Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief (PEPFAR), a program that has saved more than 25 million lives throughout the developing world. In 2008, President Bush awarded Dr. Fauci the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the country's highest civilian award, for his work in HIV/AIDS.

During Dr. Fauci's tenure at NIAID, he also led initiatives to bolster medical and public health preparedness against emerging infectious disease threats such as pandemic influenza and COVID-19. As longtime chief of the Laboratory of Immunoregulation, Dr. Fauci made many contributions to basic and clinical research into the pathogenesis and treatment of immune-mediated and infectious diseases.

Dr. Fauci's laboratory also helped pioneer the field of human immunoregulation. He is widely recognized for identifying and explaining the precise ways that immunosuppressive agents modulate the human immune response.

Born in Brooklyn, New York, Dr. Fauci attended Regis High School in Manhattan, where he captained the school's basketball team despite being only 5 feet 7 inches tall. He earned a bachelor's degree from the College of the Holy Cross in Worcester, Massachusetts, before earning his medical degree from Cornell University's Medical College (now Weill Cornell Medicine) in New York City, ranking first in his graduating class.

Dr. Fauci has delivered major lectures all over the world and is the recipient of numerous awards, including the National Medal of Science, the George M. Kober Medal of the Association of American Physicians and the Mary Woodard Lasker Award for Public Service. He has received 58 honorary doctoral degrees from universities in the United States and abroad.

Dr. Fauci is a member of the National Academy of Sciences, the National Academy of Medicine, the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and the American Philosophical Society, as well as other professional societies including the American College of Physicians, the American Society for Clinical Investigation, the Infectious Diseases Society of America and the American Association of Immunologists. He serves on the editorial boards of many scientific journals and is an author, coauthor or editor of more than 1,400 scientific publications and several textbooks.

In addition to receiving an honorary degree at Commencement, Dr. Fauci is serving as speaker at the School of Medicine's graduation ceremony for MD and MD/PhD students. In January 2021, he spoke about the COVID-19 pandemic as part of the Washington University Department of Medicine's weekly Grand Rounds. Several thousand people from the university and the general public watched his live, online talk, in which he highlighted the considerable challenges of the pandemic but also emphasized the hope spurred by the distribution of effective vaccines.

Dr. Fauci and his wife, Christine Grady, MSN, PhD, are the parents of three daughters.

HONORARY DEGREE

Alphonso Jackson

Doctor of Laws

When President George W. Bush nominated Alphonso Jackson to serve as secretary of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), he described Mr. Jackson as a “man who understands the struggles and hopes of urban America.”

In March 2004, Mr. Jackson was unanimously confirmed HUD secretary by the U.S. Senate, a reflection of his strong background in the development of affordable and market-rate housing, handling complex urban development issues and housing finance.

Mr. Jackson was born in Marshall, Texas, the youngest of 12 children, and spent his early childhood in then-segregated South Dallas.

He has noted that his parents did not have much education, but their goal was to educate all 12 children. Mr. Jackson earned a bachelor’s degree in political science in 1968 and a master’s degree in education administration, both from Truman State University in Kirksville, Missouri. He went on to law school at Washington University, where he earned a juris doctor in 1973.

Shortly after law school graduation, Mr. Jackson was named an assistant professor at the University of Missouri–St. Louis, where he also served as special assistant to the chancellor.

He became director of the Department of Public Safety for the city of St. Louis in 1977. He also served as deputy and interim executive director for the Housing Authority of St. Louis before joining the accounting firm of Laventhol and Horwarth as director of consultant services.

He left St. Louis for Washington, D.C., in 1987 to assume the directorship of the Department of Public and Assisted Housing, as well as chair of the District of Columbia’s Redevelopment Land Agency.

In 1989, Mr. Jackson became president and CEO of the Housing Authority of the city of Dallas. As the first African American to head the agency, he worked to improve dilapidated buildings and unsafe conditions in the city’s neglected public housing units. During his tenure, the Dallas Housing Authority was ranked among the best-managed large-city housing agencies in the country.

Prior to his U.S. government service, he was named president and chief operating officer of American Electric Power-Texas, a $13 billion utility company and subsidiary of American Electric Power.

He joined the Bush Administration in 2001 as HUD’s deputy secretary and chief operating officer. Working under then HUD Secretary Mel Martinez, he managed the daily operations of the $36 billion agency.

In August 2004, Mr. Jackson became the nation’s 13th secretary of Housing and Urban Development, a distinction that marked him as the third African American in the Bush Cabinet after Secretary of State General Colin Powell and Education Secretary Rod Paige.

After his four-year tenure as HUD secretary, he joined the Center for Public Policy and Leadership at Hampton University as its inaugural director and distinguished university professor. In 2012, he became vice chairman of mortgage services banking at JP Morgan Chase in New York City.

In 2015, Mr. Jackson served as senior advisor to the CEO at First Data Corporation (now the Fiserv Corporation). Working out of the Washington, D.C., office, his primary focus was to strengthen First Data’s relationships with federal, state and international government entities.

Mr. Jackson has served on numerous national and state commissions including the General Services Commission of the State of Texas and the National Commission on America’s Urban Families. He serves or has served on the U.S. Institute of Peace International Advisory Council, Ford’s Theatre Society Board of Trustees, Howard University’s Board of Trustees and chair of the U.S. Department of State Fulbright Foreign Scholarship Board.

A 2004 recipient of Washington University’s Distinguished Alumni Award, Mr. Jackson has returned to his alma mater to lecture. While HUD secretary, he met with Washington University’s McDonnell International Scholars Academy members in Washington, D.C., to discuss the challenges of economic and social development.

HONORARY DEGREE

Paul Michael Lützeler

Doctor of Humanities

Paul Michael Lützeler, the Rosa May Distinguished University Professor Emeritus in the Humanities, taught for nearly 50 years at Washington University and is a renowned scholar of German studies and comparative literature.

“Mike [as Lützeler is known by friends and colleagues] is a man of phenomenal energy who belongs to the leading scholars of German literature and culture of his generation,” said Lynne Tatlock, the Hortense and Tobias Lewin Distinguished Professor in the Humanities and chair of the Department of Germanic Languages and Literatures in Arts & Sciences. “For five decades his vision and dedication played a vital role in shaping the German department and launching the careers of his many doctoral students.”

Dr. Lützeler was born in Doveren, Germany, and studied German and English literature, philosophy and history in Berlin, Edinburgh and Vienna. In 1968, he emigrated to the United States. After earning his doctorate in German literature at Indiana University, he became a professor at Washington University in 1973.

From 1983 to 1988, he was chair of the Germanic languages and literatures department. In this role, he founded the university’s European Studies program and was the program coordinator for 20 years. Dr. Lützeler also taught in the Comparative Literature and Global Studies programs.

While German department chair, Dr. Lützeler founded the Max Kade Center for Contemporary German Literature and was director of the center until spring 2022. He began the center after discovering that the university’s holdings in contemporary German literature were lacking. He wrote to German publishers, asking them to send copies of their recent works. He administered the collection with support from Olin Library and the Max Kade Foundation in New York. In 2018, the Contemporary German Literature Collection at the Washington University Libraries was renamed the Mike Lützeler Contemporary German Literature Collection in his honor.

In addition to its literary holdings, the center sponsors a visitor’s program. Every spring since 1985, the Max Kade Center has invited one prominent writer and one leading critic from a German-speaking country to teach a graduate course on contemporary German literature. Furthermore, the center organizes weekend seminars for doctoral students and young faculty members from all over the United States. The center also gives summer grants to doctoral candidates and faculty members from other U.S. universities.

In addition to his other leadership roles, he served as chair of the Faculty Senate Council in 1994 and 1995.

Dr. Lützeler is an expert on Jewish-Austrian author Hermann Broch. He wrote the book Hermann Broch: A Biography, which received the DAAD Prize of the German Studies Association and was published in German, English, Spanish and Japanese. He was also editor of the Collected Works of Hermann Broch.

Dr. Lützeler published 15 books and many editions in his areas of research: the idea of Europe in literature since Romanticism, German exile literature from 1933 to 1945 in the United States, and transatlantic relations in contemporary German literature.

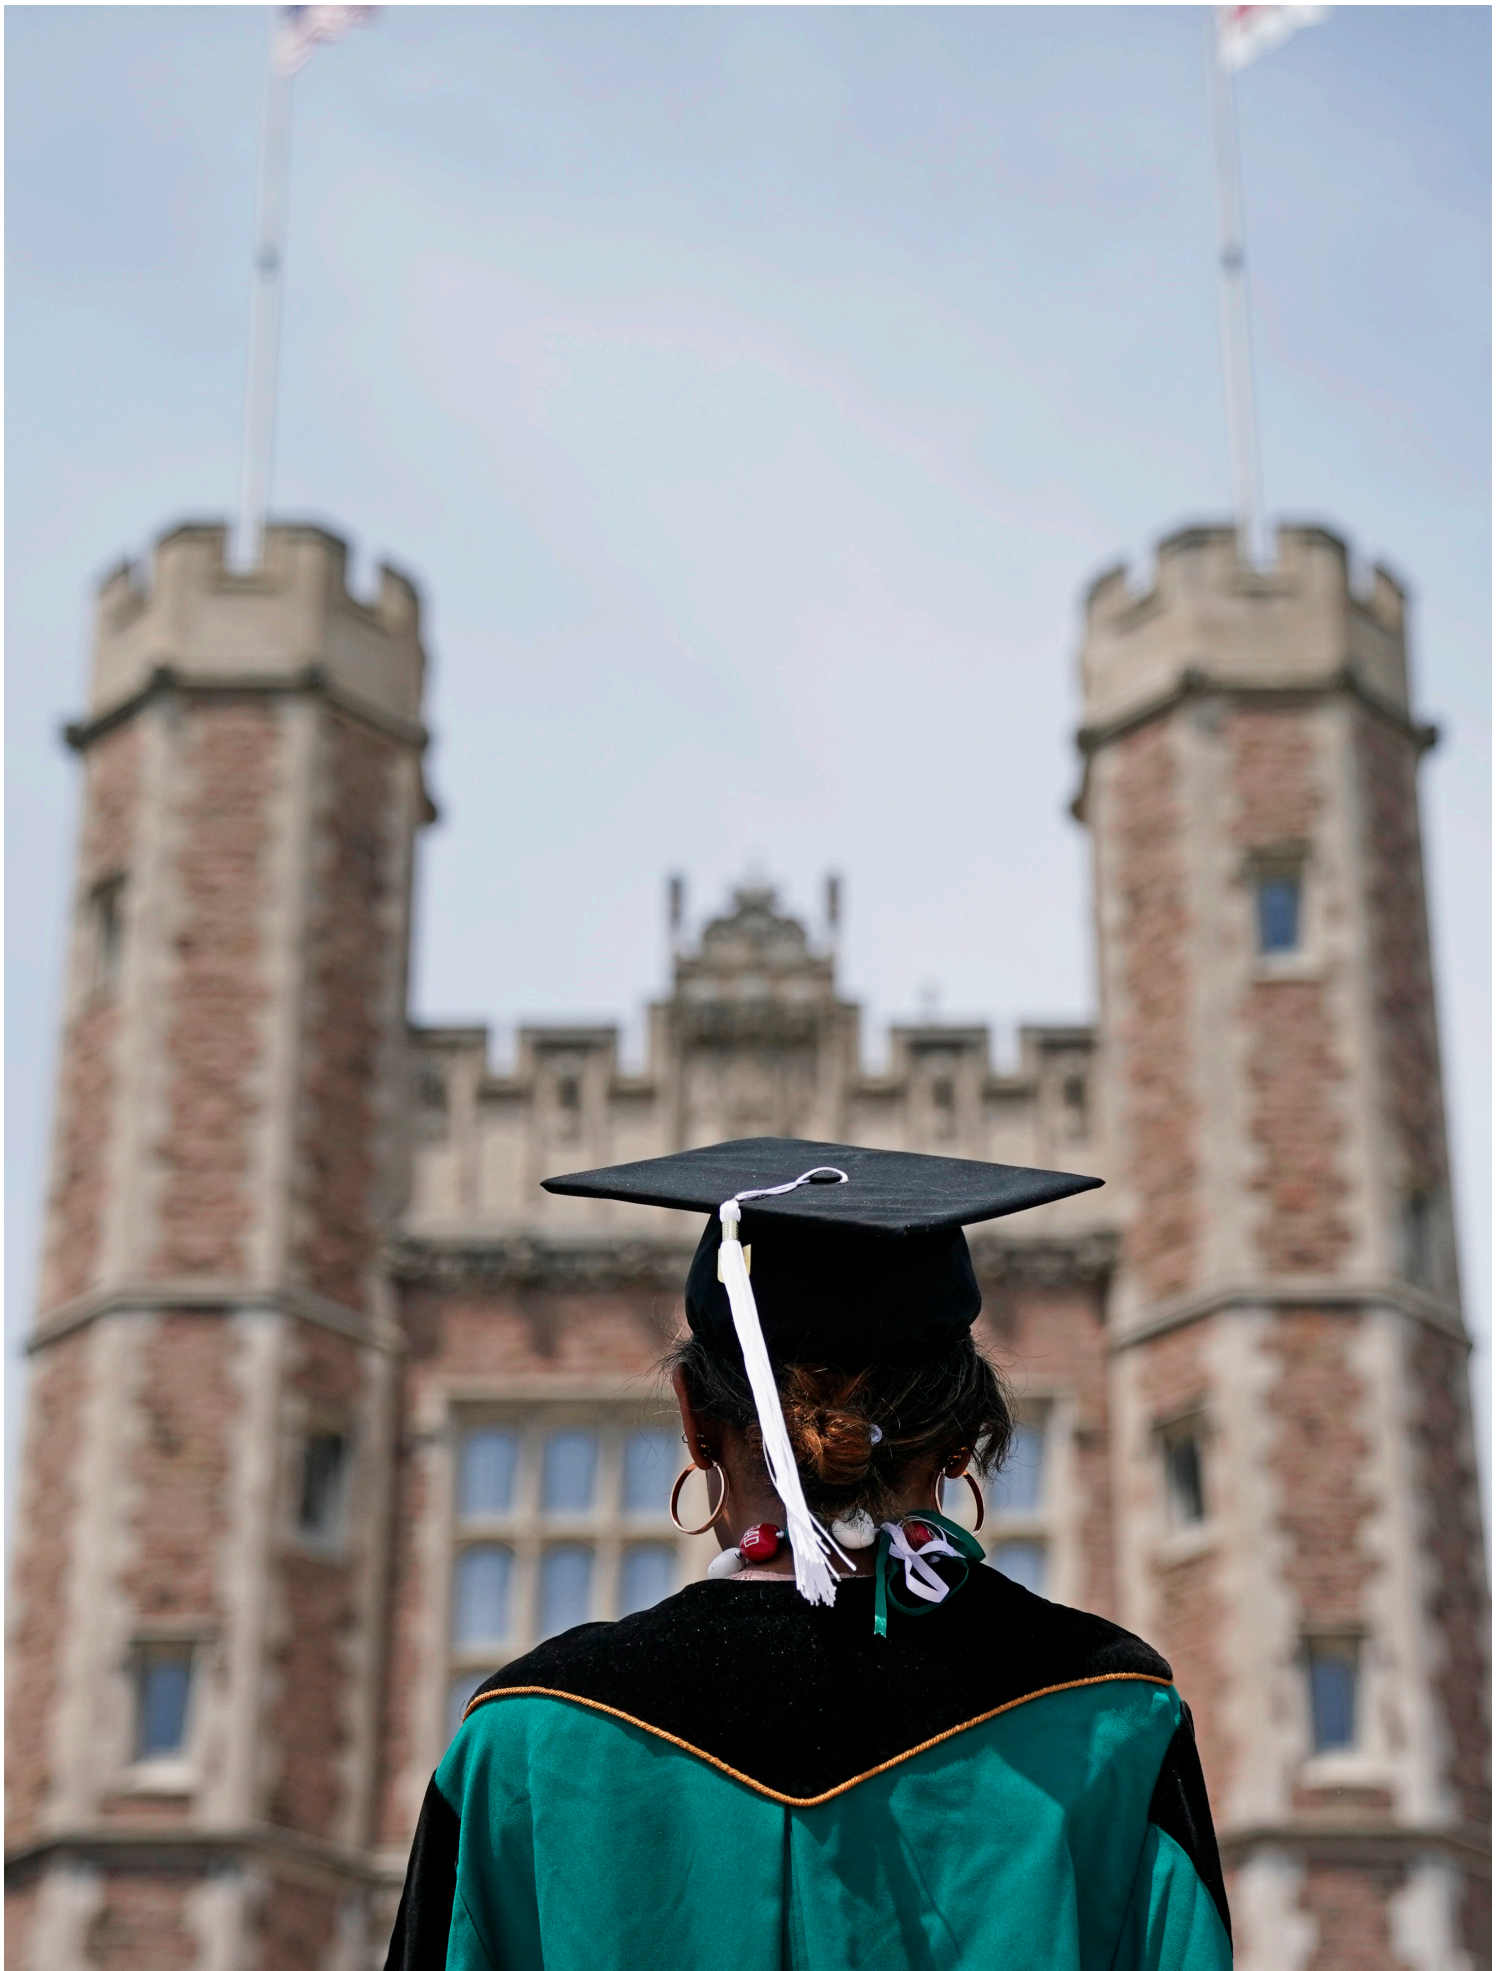

From 1980 to 1983, he was the editor in chief of The German Quarterly, America’s leading refereed journal in German studies. In 2002, he founded the refereed journal Gegenwartsliteratur: A German Studies Yearbook and served as editor in chief until 2020. He also served on the editorial boards of several scholarly journals and has written for German newspapers and magazines.

Dr. Lützeler engaged in exchange programs with European, U.S. and Asian universities and was guest professor in cities around the world, including New Delhi, Beijing, Madrid and Tokyo.

He received research grants from leading U.S. and German foundations and from institutes of advanced studies in the United States, Europe and Australia.

He received medals of merit from the governments of Germany and Austria, the Goethe Institute, the German Academy for Language and Literature, the German Studies Association and the German American Heritage Society. In 2015, he was the recipient of Washington University’s Arthur Holly Compton Faculty Achievement Award.

Dr. Lützeler lives in St. Louis with his wife, Ingrid. The couple has two children, Andrea and Thilo, and two grandchildren, Ayla and Ellison.
