

WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY
IN ST. LOUIS

ONE HUNDRED AND SIXTY THIRD
COMMENCEMENT

MAY 13, 2024

BROOKINGS HALL stands as the symbolic heart of Washington University, its archway serving as a doorway between the university and the St. Louis community. Constructed of red Missouri granite in the Collegiate Gothic style, “University Hall,” as it was first called, was built between 1900 and 1902 and was the administrative center for the 1904 World’s Fair.

FRANCIS OLYMPIC FIELD is named for alumnus and statesman David R. Francis. It was constructed in 1902 and first used in 1904 for the third Olympic Games, held in St. Louis. The ornamental wrought-iron gate on the east end of the field was built after the World's Fair to commemorate the 1904 Olympics, and the field is a registered historic landmark. In 2018, the sculpture "Spectacular," featuring the five interlaced Olympic rings, was installed near Francis Olympic Field, celebrating St. Louis' Olympic legacy.

THE COMMENCEMENT CEREMONY

Washington University and other American universities, public and private, follow the pattern of degree granting developed at the University of Paris, which was founded about 1100. In the early days of the University of Paris, the discipline of the students—and indeed their education—fell under the jurisdiction of the Bishop of Paris who was responsible for local educational matters. While the bishop claimed supervision of curriculum and degree-granting, the university’s teaching masters disagreed, believing that they were the proper judges of the qualifications of their students. As such, they demanded the right to grant degrees.

The modern commencement ceremony represents a compromise between the bishop and the teaching masters. By 1200, the masters were judging the merits of students and then recommending them to the bishop, who conferred degrees. Today’s ceremony is the successor to this medieval compromise. The deans present the qualified candidates to the chancellor. Acting upon the recommendation of the faculty, the chancellor, as executive officer of the Board of Trustees, formally confers the appropriate degrees.

ACADEMIC DRESS

The academic dress worn by faculty and degree candidates originates in the clerical robes of students and teachers at the earliest medieval universities. In 1895, American colleges and universities adopted a code of academic dress that included regulating the cut and style of the gowns and prescribing colors to represent the different fields of learning. The code, which has since been updated and revised, is still in use at colleges and universities throughout the United States. The design of caps and gowns is determined by the following:

Level of degree earned: This is reflected in the design of the gown. The bachelor’s degree gown has pointed sleeves, the master’s degree gown has oblong sleeves, and doctoral degree gown has bell-shaped sleeves with three bars of velvet. All can be worn open or closed.

Institution granting the degree: The backs of the hoods for advanced degrees are lined with silk showing the colors of the institution granting the degree or the institution with which the wearer is connected. Washington University’s hood is lined with red and green, the school’s official colors. The color of the tassel on the cap and of the velvet edging of the hood, which is carried forward around the throat, indicates the division of the university:

Arts & Sciences (bachelor’s and master’s degrees) — white
Arts & Sciences (PhD) — dark-blue
Architecture — blue-violet
Art — brown
Business — silver-beige
Engineering — orange
Law — purple
Medicine — green
Public Health — salmon pink
Social Policy — peacock
Social Work — citron
Continuing & Professional Studies — golden-yellow
Honorary degrees awarded by the Board of Trustees — gold

BANNERS

In addition to the coloring present in the academic dress, the division also is represented on the Commencement banners. These banners are carried by a student marshal at the head of the procession for their division. The side sections of the banners are red and green, the university’s colors, and the center section, which bears the seal of the university, is the color of the academic division.

THE UNIVERSITY SEAL

Holmes Smith, professor of drawing and history of art, developed the university seal (on the cover) in 1896. The original version, approved by the Board of Trustees in March 1897, incorporated elements of the coat of arms of George Washington, for whom the university is named, and fleur-de-lis, the symbol of King Louis IX, the patron and namesake of St. Louis. The current seal was created in 2000 and includes these same elements, as well as the university motto, “per veritatem vis” or strength through truth, which was adopted in 1915.

HONORARY GRAND MARSHAL

Stuart I. Greenbaum

During his tenure as dean of Washington University's Olin Business School — from 1995 to 2005 — Stuart I. Greenbaum, PhD, the Bank of America Professor Emeritus of Managerial Leadership, led a remarkable transformation of the school that included growing both curriculum offerings and faculty; establishing the Charles F. Knight Executive Education Center to support executive education and lifelong learning; and creating a partnership with Fudan University in Shanghai, China, that is still in place today.

A native New Yorker, Dr. Greenbaum was born in Manhattan and grew up in Queens. He earned a bachelor's degree in economics from New York University. After serving in the Army, he continued his education at Johns Hopkins University where he earned a doctorate in economics. It was there, too, that he met his future wife, Margaret Elaine Wache, who was a fellow student in the doctoral program.

Dr. Greenbaum began his career at the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City. In 1964, he received his first academic job offer — to become assistant professor of economics at Washington University. Instead of accepting that offer, he returned to the Federal Reserve followed by employment at the Comptroller of the Currency, a division of the U.S. Department of the Treasury in Washington, D.C.

From Washington, Dr. Greenbaum went to the University of Kentucky where he became chairman of its Department of Economics. In 1976, he transferred to the Kellogg School of Management at Northwestern University where he was on faculty for 20 years. He served as the school's associate dean for academic affairs for four of those years.

In 1995, Dr. Greenbaum accepted an offer to lead the Olin Business School. He quickly developed a reputation as a visionary leader, brilliant teacher and consummate learner and listener. He set lofty goals for the school to be ranked among the best in the country and laid the groundwork to achieve those goals — a legacy that continues today.

Dr. Greenbaum shifted the school's culture to be more responsive to students' needs. In graduate and undergraduate programs, he made major curricular advances that sparked the development of more than 40 new courses of study and allowed students to customize their programs. He collaborated with McKelvey School of Engineering and the School of Medicine to launch two executive master's degree programs in manufacturing and health services management and implemented flexible schedules for adult learners.

With hands-on courses in entrepreneurship, global management and investments and courses featuring consulting with public schools, private companies and nonprofit organizations, Dr. Greenbaum brought experiential learning to the forefront at Olin. The Hatchery — a now highly popular class in which student entrepreneurs work in teams to create viable business plans — is one such class that was developed to meet this experiential learning need.

Under his leadership, Olin flourished: Applications to the full-time Master of Business Administration and the Bachelor of Science in Business Administration programs reached records for the time, as did giving to the school. Thanks to generous support from alumni and the community, the school had the resources to add 14 new endowed professorial chairs, build the $50 million 135,000-square-foot Knight Center, and establish the Skandalaris Center for Entrepreneurial Studies. Over the last 20 years, more than 1,000 student startups at various stages have worked with the interdisciplinary center.

Dr. Greenbaum authored two books on banking and more than 80 articles in professional and scholarly journals. He also was a founding editor of the Journal of Financial Intermediation, which is still published today, and served on the editorial boards of 10 other academic journals.

Over the years, Dr. Greenbaum served on the boards of 17 public companies. He also served on the Dean's Advisory Council of the Graduate Management Admission Council and the board of the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business, the primary accrediting agency for business schools. Community service is a shared passion of Dr. Greenbaum and his wife, Elaine Greenbaum, PhD, who earned a bachelor's degree from WashU in 1960. They received the Dean's Medal for exceptional dedication and service to Olin in 2006. The honor recognized both Dr. Greenbaum's numerous accomplishments as dean, as well as Elaine's contributions to the school and her relationship with Olin students, faculty and alumni that helped foster a culture of caring.

Outside of Olin, Dr. Greenbaum served on the boards of numerous nonprofits including St. Louis Children's Hospital, Provident Behavioral Health Services and Covenant Place, a senior living facility for the less affluent. He eventually served as board chair of Provident, dedicating countless hours to ensure it had the necessary resources to care for those in need in the St. Louis community.

The Greenbaums live in St. Louis and have two adult children, Nathan and Regina.

HONORARY DEGREE

Andrew C. Chan, MD, PhD

Doctor of Medicine

Andrew C. Chan, MD, PhD, is a physician-scientist known for pioneering research on immune system regulation and ongoing leadership in the development of new therapies for multiple sclerosis, breast cancer, lung cancer, lymphoma and other life-threatening diseases.

As senior vice president of research-biology at Genentech, Dr. Chan oversees more than a thousand research scientists pursuing the discovery of new drugs through basic science breakthroughs in oncology, immunology, regenerative medicine, neuroscience and infectious diseases.

A former faculty member, physician and researcher at Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis, Dr. Chan is an MD/PhD graduate of the university's Medical Scientist Training Program, which prepares physician-scientists to become leaders in biomedical research.

Born in Hong Kong, Dr. Chan was 7 years old when his family emigrated to the United States. His father was an engineer. His mother, a teacher. He and three siblings attended public schools in Irvine, California, where he played the violin and accordion, competed in chess and debate and had his interest in science sparked by a high school chemistry teacher. Extra-credit college classes helped him enroll at Northwestern University with sophomore standing at age 16.

Concerned that he would be too young for medical school if he graduated at age 19, he pursued a four-year program at Northwestern that granted a master's and a bachelor's degree while providing opportunities for research. He graduated in 1980, still planning to become a doctor, but had become intrigued by medical research — competing interests that drew him to the Medical Science Training Program at Washington University.

Dr. Chan earned his medical and doctoral degrees from Washington University in 1986. After an internship and residency at Barnes-Jewish Hospital in St. Louis, he completed a clinical and research postdoctoral fellowship and joined the faculty at the University of California, San Francisco.

Between 1994 and 2001, he was a Washington University faculty member and a Howard Hughes Medical Institute Investigator. After beginning work at Genentech in San Francisco in 2001, he served on the clinical faculty at UCSF from 2002–2012.

Dr. Chan's research explores malfunctions in immune system mechanisms that may contribute to autoimmune and inflammatory diseases. Early on, he discovered that a severe form of immunodeficiency syndrome is caused by mutations in a protein that normally enables immune cells to tailor the body's response to pathogens. The discovery of another protein and its role in immune cell development made him a leader in the field of immune cell activation.

At Genentech, Dr. Chan has continued basic research while translating his team's findings into new therapies for immune diseases and other disorders. He co-invented ocrelizumab, a treatment for multiple sclerosis. And he has overseen the early development of many other experimental therapies, including atezolizumab, which has played a significant role in breakthroughs in cancer immunotherapy. He has championed the idea that because inflammatory diseases have so many causes, a personalized medicine approach is required to treat them.

A loyal supporter of Washington University, Dr. Chan serves on the School of Medicine's National Council.

He and his wife, Washington University graduate Mary Finnorn Chan, HS '89, also established a fellowship program that recruits the very best predoctoral students to train in human immunology at Washington University. It is named for Dr. Chan's mentor, John P. Atkinson, MD, the Samuel B. Grant Professor of Clinical Medicine.

Dr. Chan's Washington University recognitions include the Medical Center Alumni Association's Alumni Achievement Award in 2019, the Special Recognition Award for Mentoring Graduate Students in 2000 and the Distinguished Alumni Founders Day Award in 2023.

An accomplished leader in many areas of drug discovery, and development, Dr. Chan has played key roles in building bridges between academia, patient advocacy and industry. He is chair of the Scientific Advisory Board of the Lupus Research Alliance and member of the Medical and Scientific Advisory Board of the Arthritis Foundation.

His honors include the Chairman's Award of Distinction from the American Federation for Aging Research and the Guin Warnock Award from the Arthritis Foundation. He is a Pew Scholar, a member of the American Society for Clinical Investigation and the Association of American Physicians.

He and his wife have two children, Michael and Jennifer.

HONORARY DEGREE

Bethany L. Ehlmann

Doctor of Science

Washington University alumna and Rhodes Scholar Bethany L. Ehlmann has been committed to advancing scientific understanding of the solar system and pioneering approaches to remote sensing since her undergraduate years on the Danforth Campus.

Today, she is a professor of planetary science and the Allen V. C. Davis and Lenabelle Davis Leadership Chair and director of the Keck Institute for Space Studies at the California Institute of Technology.

Dr. Ehlmann serves as the principal investigator of Lunar Trailblazer, a NASA mission focused on mapping the form, distribution and abundance of water on the Moon and understanding the lunar water cycle. She is a key contributor to several high-profile Mars missions, including the Mars Reconnaissance Orbiter, Mars Science Laboratory's Curiosity rover, and the Mars 2020 Perseverance rover. She also serves as a co-investigator for the EMIT space station-based imaging spectrometer to explore Earth's dust source regions.

She has been commended for her research work using spectroscopy to determine the mineralogy of Mars's surface and the extent of the red planet's previous habitability. Honored with the American Geophysical Union's James B. Macelwane Medal in 2015 and the American Astronomical Society's Harold C. Urey Prize for outstanding achievement in planetary research by an early-career scientist in 2017, Dr. Ehlmann's discovery of carbonates, serpentines and clay minerals in Mars's most ancient rocks showed that multiple types of environments hospitable for life existed early in Martian history, especially the most ancient groundwater-fed environments as yet unvisited by rovers.

Her inspiring work has motivated the development of Mars exploration strategies and methods, has been applied to other solar system bodies and Earth remote sensing, and will continue to drive planetary science forward. She is currently working to propose instrument and mission concepts for Europa, Enceladus, Venus, the Moon and asteroids.

Her accomplishments and leadership exemplify the spirit of discovery. She is president of the Planetary Society, the world's largest nonprofit focused on fostering space exploration, the search for life and the protection of Earth from asteroid impacts. Dr. Ehlmann is active in policy and outreach, having served on National Academy of Sciences panels to develop national priorities for space science, the Committee on Astrobiology and Planetary Science and the steering committee of the most recent Planetary Science and Astrobiology Decadal Survey. She has generously supported opportunities for students to develop relevant skills for research in the space sciences and other pursuits.

"I had the privilege of interacting with Bethany as her four-year adviser, together with the time she spent in my planetary science laboratory as an undergraduate research assistant," said Raymond E. Arvidson, the James S. McDonnell Distinguished University Professor Emeritus in Arts & Sciences at WashU. "Even as a freshman, she showed the excellence and dedication that subsequently propelled her to the forefront of planetary sciences. She continues to be a valued colleague who is rapidly advancing our knowledge about the solar system."

Originally from Tallahassee, Florida, she earned her bachelor's degree at WashU in 2004, with majors in earth and planetary sciences and in environmental studies and a minor in mathematics, all in Arts & Sciences. She earned Master of Science degrees from the University of Oxford in environmental change and management in 2005 and in geography in 2007 as a Rhodes Scholar, and a master's and a doctorate in geological sciences in 2010 as a National Science Foundation graduate fellow at Brown University.

While at WashU, she received a Fossett Fellowship for the Pathfinder Program in environmental studies in 2001. In the Pathfinder Program — a special curriculum that allowed students the chance to specialize in topics and to examine them from many different academic perspectives — she worked in the earth and planetary science department's Remote Sensing Laboratory.

A Robinson Fellow and an Arthur Holly Compton Scholar for her four years at the university, Dr. Ehlmann was also both a Barry M. Goldwater Scholar in Science, Mathematics and Engineering and a Morris K. Udall Scholar in Environmental Studies in 2002–03. She won the Varney Prize in Undergraduate Physics in 2001. Twice she was elected as an Arts & Sciences senator for the Student Union, and she served as a student representative on the Chancellor's Committee on Environmental Quality. She was also a member of the women's ultimate frisbee club team.

She is an American Geophysical Union fellow and an American Mineralogical Society fellow and was named a National Geographic Emerging Explorer in 2013. Dr. Ehlmann also received the Committee on Space Research (COSPAR) Zeldovich Medal, as well as NASA group achievement awards.

In 2018, she authored a children's book on solar system exploration, Dr. E's Super Stellar Solar System, with Jennifer Swanson and National Geographic Kids.

Dr. Ehlmann lives in Pasadena, California.

HONORARY DEGREE

Kenneth S. Kranzberg

Doctor of Fine Arts

As chairman emeritus of Kranson Industries and TricorBraun, Kenneth S. Kranzberg is one of St. Louis' most prominent business leaders and one of its most exemplary philanthropists. With his wife, Nancy, Mr. Kranzberg has supported hundreds of civic, social and arts organizations, building an important legacy of engaged community service.

Born and raised in St. Louis, Mr. Kranzberg graduated from University City High School in 1955. He then attended the College of William & Mary in Williamsburg, Virginia, earning his bachelor's degree in 1959. After a stint in the U.S. Army, he returned home to join the family business founded in 1902, Northwestern Bottle Company, now known as TricorBraun.

In the early 1960s, the company was a distributor of glass bottles and closures but Mr. Kranzberg recognized the new opportunities presented by the introduction of high-density plastics. He opened the company's first branch office, in Memphis, Tennessee, in 1967.

Today, TricorBraun has grown to become the nation's largest distributor, and second largest in the world, of packaging for cosmetics, health and beauty products, food and beverages, household and industrial chemicals, and pharmaceuticals. It operates more than 100 locations around the globe.

Mr. Kranzberg brings a similar acumen to his work with many of St. Louis' foremost civic and cultural institutions. He has served on the boards of the Arts and Education Council, Dance St. Louis, the Missouri Historical Society, the National Conference for Community and Justice of Metropolitan St. Louis, Nine PBS, Opera Theatre of Saint Louis and the University of Missouri–St. Louis (UMSL) Center for International Studies, among others. With Mrs. Kranzberg, he co-chaired the board at Laumeier Sculpture Park and established the Kranzberg Education Lab.

As chairman of the board of Grand Center, Inc., Mr. Kranzberg was instrumental in revitalizing the Grand Center Arts District through the development of the Sun Theater, Metro Theater Company, KDHX-FM and KWMU-FM. The Kranzberg Arts Foundation, which he and Mrs. Kranzberg launched in 2006, has developed and continues to operate nearly a dozen midtown properties, providing the physical infrastructure — the studios, workspaces and public venues — that nurture artistic practice.

The foundation also supports artistic residencies and community-based programs and was instrumental in establishing Music at the Intersection, named one of 2024's top music festivals by People magazine, along with the Intersessions Micro-Conference, the Wednesday Night Jazz Jam and the St. Louis Place Initiative.

At Washington University, Mr. Kranzberg serves on both the Sam Fox School of Design & Visual Arts National Council and the Mildred Lane Kemper Art Museum's Art Collection Committee. In 1997, the Kranzbergs endowed the Nancy Spirtas Kranzberg Studio for the Illustrated Book. In 2006, the university dedicated the Kenneth and Nancy Kranzberg Art & Architecture Library, housed in the Kemper Art Museum building, in the couple's honor. In 2016, the Kranzbergs endowed the Dowd Illustration Research Archive.

Mr. Kranzberg also has served as president of the Whitney R. Harris World Ecology Center, a partnership between UMSL, the Missouri Botanical Garden and the Saint Louis Zoo; as vice president of the Jewish Federation of St. Louis; as president and chairman of the National Association of Container Distributors; and on the Anti-Defamation League's national executive committee.

Mr. Kranzberg's many honors include the Variety St. Louis Man of the Year Award, the Anti-Defamation League's Torch of Liberty Award and the National Association of Container Distributors Achievement Award. He was inducted into the University City High School Hall of Fame in 2005.

With Mrs. Kranzberg, he has received the Missouri Arts Award in Philanthropy; the Arts Advocacy Award from Missouri Citizens for the Arts; the Lifetime Achievement Award from the Arts and Education Council of St. Louis; and an honorary doctorate of humane letters from UMSL.

Mr. and Mrs. Kranzberg also have received honors from the Contemporary Art Museum St. Louis, Jazz St. Louis, the Landmarks Association of St. Louis, Laumeier Sculpture Park and the St. Louis Theater Circle, among others.

In 2023, the couple — along with their daughters, Lily Dulan and Mary Ann Srenco — received the Netzach Award for philanthropy from the American Jewish Committee St. Louis.

HONORARY DEGREE

Nancy Spirtas Kranzberg

Doctor of Fine Arts

Nancy Spirtas Kranzberg is a philanthropist, broadcaster and passionate supporter of the arts. Both individually and with her husband, Ken, Mrs. Kranzberg has created and led public initiatives, nonprofit organizations and engagement opportunities designed to nurture St. Louis artists and support the city's cultural infrastructure.

Born in Belleville, Illinois, Mrs. Kranzberg was raised in University City, Missouri, and named “funniest senior” in her class at University City High School. As an undergraduate at Washington University, she studied education in the College of Arts & Sciences and sang with the Washington University Choir. She earned her bachelor's degree in 1966 and spent several years teaching second grade.

While at WashU, a friend introduced Nancy to Ken Kranzberg, who had graduated from University City High a few years ahead of her. Mrs. Kranzberg credits another friend, also in the WashU Choir, with accompanying her on trips to the Saint Louis Art Museum and — after her marriage to Mr. Kranzberg and the birth of their two daughters, Lily and Mary Ann — with inspiring family outings to local museums, galleries and performing arts events.

During one such outing, Mrs. Kranzberg struck up a conversation with a Saint Louis Art Museum docent and soon applied to the program herself. She would later serve as a board member of the art museum as well as the Contemporary Art Museum St. Louis, Jazz at the Bistro, the Mid-America Arts Alliance and the Missouri Mansion Preservation Council. She served as first president of the board for The Sheldon Art Galleries and, with Mr. Kranzberg, co-chaired the board at Laumeier Sculpture Park, where they established the Kranzberg Education Lab.

The Kranzbergs' advocacy for the Grand Center Arts District has brought many of St. Louis' most important cultural institutions — including KDHX-FM, KWMU-FM, the Sun Theater and Metro Theater Company — to the area. In 2006, the couple further strengthened Grand Center by establishing the Kranzberg Arts Foundation, which has developed and continues to operate nearly a dozen midtown properties, providing the studios, workspaces and public venues necessary to artistic practice.

The Kranzberg Foundation also supports artistic residencies and community-based programs throughout the St. Louis area. It has been instrumental in launching Music at the Intersection, named one of 2024's top music festivals by People magazine, as well as the Intersessions Micro-Conference, the Wednesday Night Jazz Jam and the St. Louis Place Initiative.

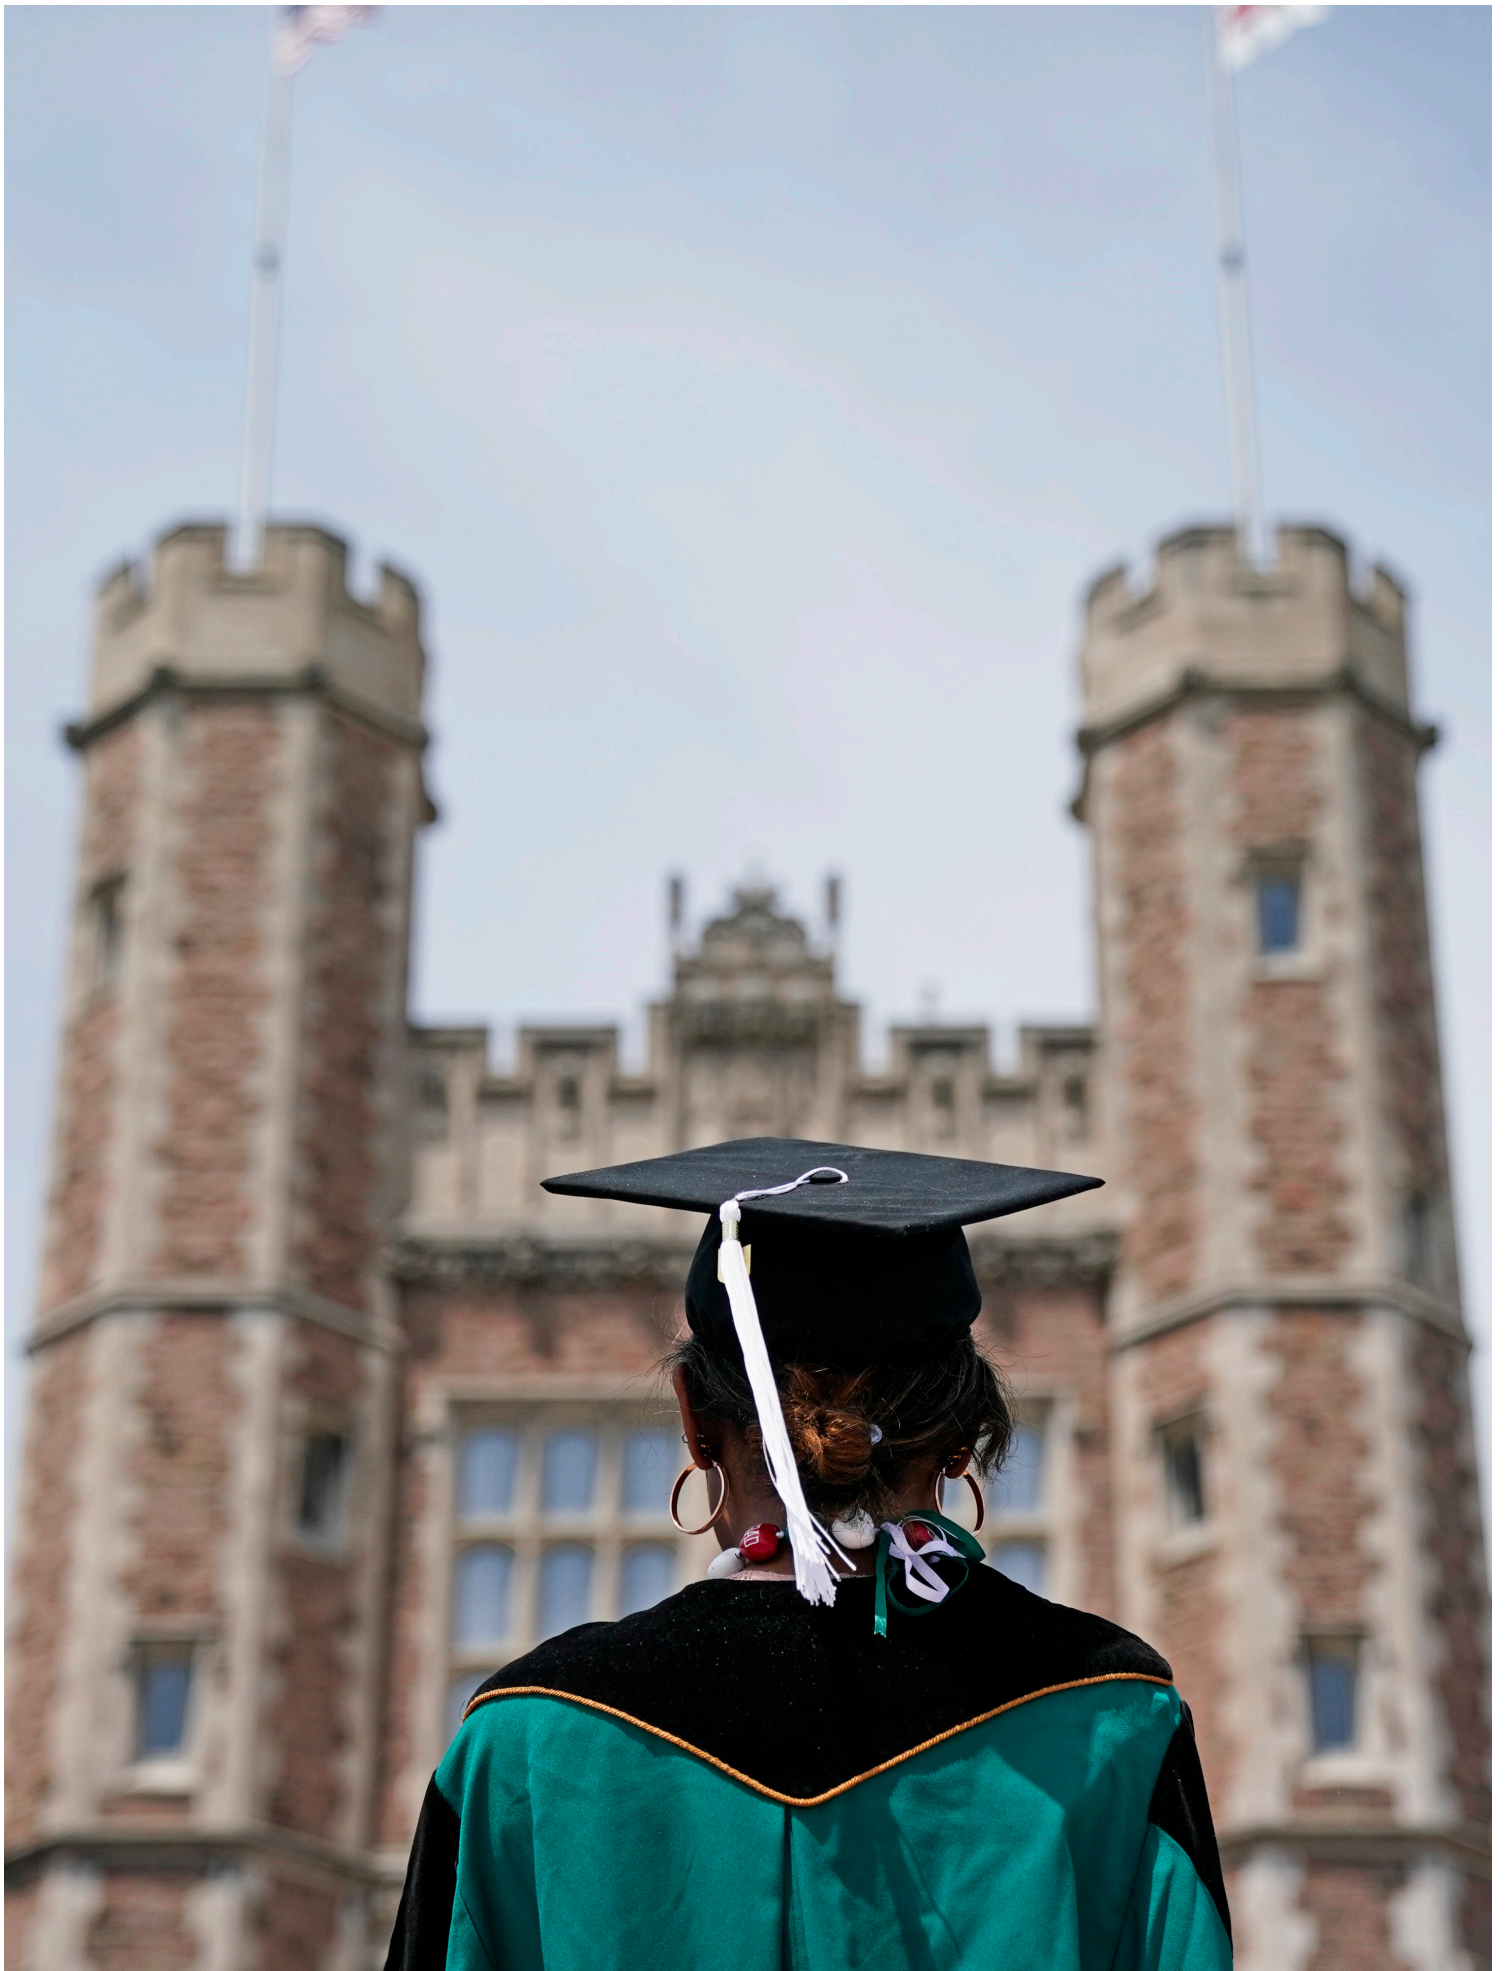

A familiar voice on St. Louis airwaves, Mrs. Kranzberg has hosted the KDHX “Arts Interview” program for more than 30 years. She is also a regular commentator for KWMU's “St. Louis on the Air” and writes an arts column for the St. Louis Jewish Light.

At WashU, Mrs. Kranzberg co-chaired University Libraries' Eliot Society Committee and served on its National Council. In 1997, the university named the Nancy Spirtas Kranzberg Studio for the Illustrated Book, part of the Sam Fox School of Design & Visual Arts, in her honor. In 2006, WashU dedicated the Kenneth and Nancy Kranzberg Art & Architecture Library, housed in the new Mildred Lane Kemper Art Museum building. In 2016, the couple endowed the Dowd Illustration Research Archive.

In 2001, Mrs. Kranzberg received both WashU's Distinguished Alumni Award and a St. Louis Woman of Achievement Award. She was inducted into the University City High School Hall of Fame in 2003. In 2007, the Kranzbergs received WashU's Jane and Whitney Harris St. Louis Community Service Award and distributed the $50,000 prize to six local nonprofits.

Mrs. Kranzberg has received the Variety St. Louis Woman of the Year Award and the Mildred Dunn Lifetime Achievement Award from Places for People. With Mr. Kranzberg, she has received the Missouri Arts Award in Philanthropy; the Arts Advocacy Award from Missouri Citizens for the Arts; the Lifetime Achievement Award from the Arts and Education Council of St. Louis; and an honorary doctorate of humane letters from the University of Missouri—St. Louis.

Other honors include recognition from the Contemporary Art Museum St. Louis, Jazz St. Louis, the Landmarks Association of St. Louis, Laumeier Sculpture Park and the St. Louis Theater Circle. In 2023, the Kranzberg family received the Netzach Award for philanthropy from the American Jewish Committee St. Louis.
